11 Crucial Tips to Avoid Daylight Abductions!!

There has been an increase in daylight hour abductions. In an emergency situation use the following:

- 1) Tae Kwon Do Tip; the elbow is the strongest point on your body. If you are ever in an emergency were you are close enough to use your elbow, it will inflict the most pain.
- 2) If a robber asks for your wallet or purse, DO NOT HAND IT TO HIM, toss it away from you. Chances are that he is more interested in your wallet or purse than you, and he will go after the
- 3) If you are ever thrown into the trunk of a car, kick out the back tail lights and stick your arm out the hole and start waving like crazy. The driver won't see you, but everybody else will.
- 4) When departing from shopping, eating, working, etc., lock the doors to your car and leave immediately. Women become an easy target when they sit in their cars doing their checkbooks, etc. This gives a predator the perfect opportunity to get in on the passenger side, put a gun to your head and tell you were to go.

Crying Baby Theory

Recently women have been reporting hearing a crying baby on their porch at night. One woman called the police because it was late and unusual. The police told her “What ever you do, DO NOT open the door.”

The women mentioned that it sounded like the baby had crawled near a window, and she was worried that it would crawl to the street and get ran over. The policeman said, “We already have a unit on the way, whatever you do, DO NOT open the door.”

Then the policeman informed her that they believe a serial killer has a baby's cry recorded and uses it to coax women out of their homes. This has not been confirmed but they have had several calls from women saying that they hear baby's cries outside their doors when they're home alone at night.

The Crying Baby Theory was mentioned on America's Most Wanted recently when they profiled the serial killer in Louisiana. It is always better to be safe than sorry and/or better paranoid than dead!

- 5) If someone is in the car with a gun to your head, DO NOT DRIVE OFF. Instead gun the engine and speed into anything, wrecking the car. Your air bag will save you and if the person is in the back set they will get the worst of it. As soon as the car crashes get out of the car and run. It is better than having them find your body in a remote location.
- 6) When getting into your car in a parking lot or parking garage be aware, look around you, look into your car, glance at the passenger side floor, and in the back seat.
- 7) If you are parked next to a big van, enter your car from the passenger door. Most serial killers attack their victims by pulling them into their vans while the women are attempting to get into their cars.
- 8) Look at the car parked on the driver's side of your vehicle, and the passenger side. If a male is sitting alone in the seat nearest your car, walk back into the mall or work and get a guard/policeman to walk you back out.
- 9) Always take the elevator instead of the stairs. Stairwells are horrible places to be alone and the perfect crime spot. This is especially true at night!
- 10) If the predator has a gun and you are not under his control, ALWAYS RUN! The predator will only hit you, a running target, 4 in 100 times and even then, it most likely will not be a vital organ .
- 11) As women, we are always trying to be sympathetic: STOP!! It may get you raped, or killed. Ted Bundy, the serial killer, was a good-looking well educated man, who ALWAYS played on the sympathies of unsuspecting women. He walked with a cane, or a limp, and often asked “for help” into his vehicle or with his vehicle, which is when he abducted his next victim.

Innocence and Youth

For those of us who grew up in the 60's, 70's and partway into the 80's, we were fortunate to be able to run around the neighborhood after school without parental supervision. We exercised, played sports, experienced camaraderie, learned to get along with our peers and became social beings in a healthy way. No one ever thought about nor did we hear about any of our friends being molested. Yet today, one girl in five and one boy in seven will be molested by age 18. The numbers might be even higher than quoted.

What I hear from my clients and see in their children is that the time for permitting kids to roam free, without overriding, omni present supervision is over. We now have structured events, we schedule play days and moms have become virtual taxi drivers for their children because no responsible parent wants their children left unattended and prey to criminal activity.

I highly recommend that you watch a TV show on NBC called, “To Catch a Predator”. The NBC staff moves around the country with a computer team who are focused on catching pedophiles who contact children over the Internet. This computer group pretends to be boys and girls, ages 12 to 15 who meet these pedophile adults in chat rooms on the computer.

The various ploys from the adult males, commonly in their 40's and 50's, are often known to tell the children that they love them, will provide them with beer or marijuana and introduce them to life experiences that as parents, we would prefer that our children learn when they are much older. These men are then told that they can come to a particular address where the child will be home and alone.

Often, the men show up undressed and regularly are there to meet young boys. What they do not know is that the street in front of the house, the yard, the walkways and the interior rooms of the house are all being video taped. When confronted by the host of the TV show, the men variously claim "This is my first time" or offer other excuses for their behavior. They are generally then arrested by the local police on site for several types of criminal acts.

My point for noting this alarming reality TV is that they show how unbelievably easy it is for this anti-pedophile group to find willing men who drive up to four hours to meet children for illegal sexual conduct. Most of these pedophiles have jobs, some are professionals and all knew what they were doing was wrong, immoral and illegal. Yet they turned up, often within 30 minutes of their first email with one of these "children".

One man stated that he had made contact with 15 or more children a week over the Internet by following the same protocols of monitoring chat rooms. MySpace.com is one of the favored chat sites for pre and young teens. There is no means of verifying the ages of any of the people who log in and participate in these chats. So our children are being groomed and victimized by adults, often 30 and 40 years older than their victims.

Recent court cases have penalized these men with community service, small fines and short probation. This has certainly not been sufficient to inhibit this behavior from these men in the future. As a society, we have permitted pedophiles to take away the freedom-to-explore that we as adults enjoyed 30 and 40 years ago. If we find this loss of safety and innocence that besets our children today regrettable and wish that things could revert back to the way they were in simpler times, we need to start lobbying for stronger sentencing requirements for pedophiles. I would ask that you support a "One-Strike, You're Out" law. This will send a message to other adult men that the risk and penalties far outweigh the rewards.

Are our society's children worth this effort? I have a granddaughter who I would like to enjoy the benefits of a happy childhood and who should be able to play in her own front yard without us worrying about her safety. If we don't do something about this now, when will it get any better? I look forward to your call, comments or emails.
